

On the Frontlines of Creating Inclusive Cities in Practice

- What can Sweden learn from the Global South?

Addressing exclusion in cities is a global challenge and a key to reaching Agenda 2030. Welcome to a breakfast seminar discussing experiences of dealing with co-production, collaboration, informality and building trust between communities and local government.

The seminar will draw on the experiences of Slum Dwellers International (SDI) as a global movement of the urban poor in 32 countries and hundreds of cities and towns across Africa, Asia and Latin America, and initiate a discussion on what Swedish cities can learn from the Global South.

The event is jointly organized by SDI, SKL and the SymbioCity Secretariat.

When: Tuesday 22 May 8:00 – 09:30
Where: Hörsalen, Myntkabinettet, Slottsbacken 6
Please RSVP: rsvp@sdi.net

For questions, please contact
Mats Jarnhammar at: mats.jarnhammar@skl.se

Programme

08:00	Breakfast is served
08:15	Welcome and introduction	Mats Jarnhammar, Moderator, SKL International Nayoka Martinez-Bäckström, Program Manager & Specialist, Sida
08:25	On the frontlines of creating truly inclusive cities: Who are the Slum Dwellers International?	Sarah Nandudu, SDI board member, Uganda
08:35	How are Swedish cities working with social inclusion?	Nils Munthe, Desk Officer, SKL's section for Democracy & Governance
08:45	Stories from the ground: Co-production with local government – experiences from Kenya	Joseph Muturi, SDI, Member of the management committee, Kenya
09:00	Stories from the ground: Building trust between government and marginalized groups – experiences from Uganda	Sarah Nandudu, SDI board member, Uganda
09:15	Panel discussion: What and how can Sweden learn from the global South?	Moderated by SKL International. Panel with: • Beth Chitekwe-Biti, SDI, Deputy Managing Director, Secretariat, South Africa • Teresa Lindholm, Social planner, White architects • Tomaj Keyvani, Area Coordinator, Botkyrka Municipality • Åsa Winfridsson, Prevention Coordinator, City of Stockholm
09:30	Closing	